You can legally ass rape a minor and knowingly give them aids in CA and it is not a crime. Guy that wrote the bills : Senator Weiner.
Not a joke.
There is no cure for what ails our civilization that doesnt involve violence.

Well the Justice Roberts shit aside, Hawley is solid.
And a Senator saying they'll object? That's huge.
Even back in 2000/2001 in Bush v Gore, you had plenty of Representatives object... But .
Senators.

Why do former Representatives do the right thing vs. Senators? There must be a secret

10 Democratic senators know that they can rely on the metro areas in states to run re-election every 6 years.

Representatives can be easily replaced every 2 years of they don't fight for their district

Something to do with adoption of his kids... not being altogether legal. People who can be easily blackmailed are not meant to be holding any sort of office, and yet our gov't is full of degenerates.

I don't buy that for a second. It may well be true; it could also be cleared up in an afternoon by a decent lawyer.

However, is nothing that would compel a Supreme Court Justice (or anybody of even remotely decent character) to completely sell out the United States of America, destroy the rule of law, and set this country on a near-irreversible path towards destruction and violence... all while giving his blackmailers something very serious they could then hold over his head for the rest of time.

No. Roberts is either a blackmailed kiddiddler, or a commie conspirator, or both. Either way, he's demonstrably cool with causing this country to crumble under his pervert-eyed watch.

Roberts' decisions on average were mostly true to the Constitution - Until Obama, that is. Then he twisted himself into semantic pretzels to get Obamacare passed, knowing full well that it was unconstitutional prima facie. And just like that, the entire health insurance industry was taken over by the government, and has been gouging hard working Americans ever since, as well as paying for myriad abortions. Trump put a few dents in it, Thank God, but it needs to be destroyed utterly. Roberts has been crapping out commie nonsense like a good little obedient drone ever since, and shows no signs of growing a spine any time soon. I'd pay good money to know what Justices Thomas and Alito think about Roberts.

It could be. They got him pretty bad with this last one, almost killed him and the MSM were basically celebrating it. He might be spooked enough to keep his head down about something they're so strongly for.

It may also be that he's afraid of the damage it could do to the system to pursue it. And it will do damage, it's just a risk assessment of which will do worse - allowing a fraud election in the hope that Biden and Harris fail to do damage and the loopholes are closed next time, or overturning this clearly ruined election and likely set up precedents that will weaken the country in the future. In my opinion, Biden is the far bigger threat. Rand may feel the flip is. It's easy to fall for the idea that any one president just won't do enough damage to matter - it's what I would believe had Biden won naturally, and what I expected when the Dems inevitably flipped back in control in 2024 - it just doesn't consider that no president has been elected this fraudulently before, and doubling down on it, it's not even Biden they're putting in, it's his running mate who's 20x more unpopular and extreme.

There aren't enough redpills in this thread, but this comment is one of the few.

More Redpills:

- If realize DJT/Pence/Republicans won, and that their Electors are the legal SLATES: then it's DEMS who have to try to get their fraudulent SLATES in. There's NOTHING to object to at this point.
- Further, the 1887 Electoral Count Act is wholly unconstitutional: there is NO powers of "congress

... and, the 100th Federal Court is merely unconstitutional, there is no power of Congress
critters objecting" to the process in the US Constitution

I see no reason to celebrate this... All this does is force a 2-hour debate. To overturn the results, we need 50 senators to agree to the objection, not a handful, and there's already more than a dozen Republican senators that accepted Biden as president. Seriously just feels like they know this whole thing is gonna fail but they're gonna object anyway just so they can put on a show for us.

So, you would rather he, and others, just did nothing and showed no support? Wouldn't you be upset if no senators objected? You're calling it a "show"; but at least it's something rather than saying "I don't see any fraud here". Everyone constantly says "DO SOMETHING". 6 Okay here's your reason. If Pence holds strong and refuses to certify, objections like this legitimize it and make it easier to sell to the public.

permalink parent save report block reply

▲ Borea 1 day ago +4 / -10

-6 Here's your reason why that can't happen. Pence CANNOT do anything if there's no MAJORITY objection from either the House or the Senate. Why? Because there is no contested results if the majority of the House/Senate accept the results.

A handful of objections won't legitimize jack shit when there is nothing for Pence to sell.

Also, Pence already refused the House Republicans call to overturn the election anyway. Go read Gohmert's lawsuit against him. They flat out admitted on the suit that they contacted Pence, who refused to cooperate with them in overturning the election, and that's why they are suing him to "give him the power to choose the electors".

14 This is where it gets interesting. While he's doing the right thing here, this is a political move, betting that objecting will help out his future presidential aspirations. If nobody decided to object, it would be a safe political move to blend in with the crowd. This will put pressure on Ted Cruz and Rand Paul to object as well or risk losing Trump's base when they run in 2024. It will be great if they do object, but it's all so tiring that everything is a calculated political move for these people. Just represent the people and do the right thing.

3 Anything past 2020 I assume those who are eyeing next candidates are masochists. If these people rigged a 2020 presidential election right in our face, what makes anyone think they will allow a future MAGA candidate in? No they will tell those who want to maintain power to tow the line, crush the American peasants or the Dominion ballot printer goes BRRRR.

If 2020 stands we all lose our representation in government. Those in power officially become an Oligarchy. You can argue its slowly been building to that for years, but they officially will have cemented their power.

3 Before they just stood up and objected and got gavelled down (2016 video of Biden gaveling down objections). They are supposed to object in writing with one representative and one senator, and that apparently has not been done in a good number of years.

So watch out for anyone who stands up and says, "I object" but doesn't do it in accordance with the US Code -- they are only doing it as performance art to show the folks back home.

▼ The uniparty runs it all. This is all scripted theatre to get more donations out of our pockets. It's the WWF but for politics.

▼ Roberts connections scare me but sounds like he's doing the right thing. It would be nice if Cruz and some others would come out officially too but I assume they just want to wait till right before the big day to say they heard all possible evidence.

I just sent him my thanks!

“ Senator Hawley,

I just read your announcement that you will object to certification of the 2020 presidential election results on January 6th.

Thank you for promising to represent the concerns of every American who saw the blatantly fraudulent activity so many of our elected officials are choosing to ignore.

Do not relent. We're behind you 100%.

About 80 million of us are beyond concerned. We are enraged! And having our “concerns”, at a minir simply heard is only the beginning of the last opportunity this country will have to right this wrong and possibly avoid a literal WAR! Thank you, Senator Hawley! Now, where are the rest of the Republicans? As

2 Good. The vote cant be won BUT it can be used to call out and identify those GOPE drones that want Trumpism to just die. Thats the reason McConnell did NOT want this at all. GOPE Senators will FINALLY have to self-identify. There are only a dozen that are worth anything. Maybe even fewer.
